'Act on commitment to tackle graft'

Kantipur Report

KATHMANDU, April 14 - Lack of police cooperation is one of the reasons why corrupt people are not being punished, while lack of implementation of the commitment of political leaders is fueling the situation, Transparency International, Nepal Chapter's new report said.

"People declared corrupt and with police warrants against them are not being arrested despite the fact that they go to every public place, be it five star hotels or public gatherings," said journalist Babu Ram Dhakal while presenting the findings of a report entitled "Commercial cases in court; rumor and reality." Similarly, presenting the findings of another study entitled "Government banks trapped between commission and corruption", Hari Bahadur Thapa, senior journalist at Kantipur Publications, said whenever ministers attend international forums they express their commitment to taking action against the corrupt. "Same is their response to media until they are within the airport while returning to the country from such forums. But their commitments are not translated into action," he added.
