Manama, 12 October 2005 ---The Bahrain Transparency Society will present The Transparency International Corruption Perceptions Index 2005 (CPI) will be launched on 18 October 2005. The CPI measures the perceived prevalence of corruption in a given country.

The CPI is a composite poll covering 159 countries. It draws on 16 surveys from 10 independent institutions. The surveys, carried out among business people and country analysts, both resident and non-resident, cover the period 2003-2005. A country must be included in at least three surveys to be included in the CPI.
