

Global climate financing: how effective is it at the country level?

A side-event hosted by the Overseas Development Institute (ODI) and Transparency International (TI)

Tuesday, 29th November 2011

15.00 – 16.30 hrs

Room Indwe River, Durban Exhibition Centre

How can international climate finance strengthen the national response to climate change? What is needed? Based on both research and implementation experience, this meeting will explore the issues relating to how climate change finance is being integrated into national budgetary systems. Panellists will discuss the key challenges in spending, monitoring and policy setting for climate finance across a range of different country settings.

Chair: David Payton, UNDP

Panel:

Chantal Naidoo, Development Bank of Southern Africa

Professor Prem Jain, University of Zambia

Samuel Rotta, Transparency International, Peru

Neil Bird, Overseas Development Institute, UK